What's New in the?

It might be just me but this species looks really old. That's probably because I haven't done any animation in a long long time. The lines feel... dry. I'm pretty new to motion tracking, but I think the lines also need to be smoothed a bit more. And maybe not all the rails need to be that lanky? But those are all just my impressions, take them or leave them. I'm also not sure how to make the feet feel more natural. The background just needs more work. Maybe instead of using a bunch of quotes there's a girl that looks into the distance that's actually looking at that school instead of the sun? But yeah, maybe it's just me. a fact that money can't buy, and maybe neither can love, but to the layman that doesn't mean much, and to the professional it's a horrible thing, and I guess they both need to consider it a part of the game, and stop acting like the missing piece, I would consider that cheating and unrealistic, even though it's a game. It's not fair to expect everybody to be perfect, and I'm sure there are people out there that do similar things, and when they are outed no one should make a big deal out of it, it's just not fair. I agree w/ that, but the problem with this is that many of us tend to see it as a subculture, and not as the norm. In other words, we think "that's how it is at our school/coast." That leads me to believe we also have a bigger problem with bullying. If we continue to lump this phenomenon into its own little group and pretend it doesn't exist outside of that, then it gets easier to blame the victim. I think in the world of online gaming and the world of real world bullying, it is in many ways the same. It's an example of the influence digital media has in shaping us as humans. On a different note, you have a lot of mileage out of the word play, but I'd say the word interactive has much more power. Any form of gaming has you playing with or against another person. I have heard of this game. I do know that the people who play this game are kind of twisted in the ways that they think about what is the right way to solve problems, and that it's very apparent when you are talking with them.
